

Before the earthquake: Notice that the road slabs are just laid atop the pillars and gravity holds them in place.

After the earthquake: Notice the fallen slabs from the roadway plus the blownout shorter pillars.

After rebuilding from the earthquake: Notice the the road slabs are tied together, the pillars have a rubber pad atop to absorb shock, and the shorter pillars are wrapped with cables to keep them from blowing out.

